Syllabus

Please read this syllabus closely before you begin (and while you are completing) the reading assignments. Because this is a short course with only limited readings, I have included in this document a great deal of critical substantive information designed to enhance your understanding of the material. Also, read my descriptions of assignments closely. In some cases, I ask you only to read summaries or short passages, or to skim materials, as I am conscious that there is a lot of information to digest.

Please be aware that you are expected to complete all the readings (and a pre-class assignment) before class on February 7 (this is all described below). I have worked hard to keep the readings manageable (and interesting): I estimate that you will have between 15 and 20 hours of readings, but that may vary depending on your familiarity with the concepts, etc.

Finally, if you cannot access a webpage directly from the syllabus, copy and paste the link into your browser. If that doesn't work, please be in touch with Hannah or with me.

Course overview:

This is a one credit course, and conducted in two sessions – Friday, February 7 from 3 pm to 8 pm (with breaks), and Saturday, February 8, from 8 am to 4 pm (also with breaks).

From Syria and Somalia, to Burma and Bangladesh, to the countries of Central America and beyond, persecution, human rights violations, civil conflict and complex emergencies, which principally impact populations in the global south, pose compelling challenges to the capacities of governments, NGOs, and international organizations to prevent and alleviate suffering, provide refuge, and promote recovery. Especially in recent years, experts have increasingly questioned the ability and political will of governments to achieve those objectives. Moreover, a new presidential administration in the United States came to office in 2017 with approaches on refugee, migration, and humanitarian issues that differ significantly from its predecessors, and this has impacted the range of efforts to address challenges in these areas.

This course, which will involve lecture, guest lecture from practitioners and policy-makers (including refugees and former refugees who are now working in the field), and class discussion, will examine the efforts of governments, international organizations, non-governmental organizations (NGOs), and others to respond to refugee/humanitarian challenges posed by persecution, human rights abuses, civil conflict, complex emergencies, and natural disasters.

We will also examine the role and institutions of the United States government—in terms of its practices and policies involving overseas humanitarian assistance, U.S. refugee admissions, and asylum in the United States.

This one-credit course will take a broad and integrated approach, designed to give students a wide understanding of the lay of the humanitarian land and the questions with which advocates, policy makers, and policy practitioners grapple.

As mentioned, I am planning to welcome a number of guest speakers by Skype. These may include U.S. government and United Nations officials and officials of major humanitarian NGOs. Refugees and former refugees are also working in this field, and they will be among our guest speakers.

Books for Purchase

We will be using two books that you will need to obtain. Between Kindle editions, rentals, e-books, and paperback editions, it appears you can obtain both books from online sellers for about $50 or less (depending on your preferences). See information below about completing the reading before class begins. And be in touch with Hannah or with me if you cannot obtain the books.

Weiss, et al. The United Nations and Changing World Politics. 2017 (8th edition). Boulder: Westview Press. (Note that there is a 2019 printing of the 8th edition, but it may be expensive and may not be easily available from American publishers. As long as it is 8th edition, you are fine.)

Aleinikoff and Zamore, The Arc of Protection: Reforming the International Refugee Regime. 2019. Stanford University Press.

The other materials are all available either online (with links embedded in the syllabus), or on the Canvas site.

Learning objectives:

Students in this one credit class will gain a broad understanding—albeit limited given the short amount of time we have together—of the policy issues and institutions that are involved in international refugee and humanitarian response. This course will integrate concepts from a range of fields. Students will also gain an appreciation of key dilemmas faced by policy-makers and practitioners involved in response to complex crises, challenges to achieving policy and operational objectives, and strategies for success. Students will also learn about U.S. policy on international refugee and humanitarian assistance, and on domestic refugee, asylum, and related issues. We will not have the chance to go into the depth and detail of a three credit course, but there is much we can do in two days.

Prerequisites:

There are no formal prerequisites, other than a keen interest in the material, though those who are not graduate students should contact me before the class begins.

Course requirements and grading

To be completed any time before the first class

Please complete all the readings before class.

You are also asked to complete short responses to about 12 assigned questions drawn from the readings. Each response should be about 2 paragraphs, and the exercise is designed to ensure students have considered the readings carefully before the two class sessions. Taken together, the 12 responses should total between 1500 and 2000 words.

Because you will be completing this assignment before we've had the chance to discuss the materials, the principal criterion for my evaluation of this exercise will be whether you demonstrate that you have read the material with some care. This first assignment will count for 25% of your grade.

Late submissions: It is important that you complete this assignment before our class, as you will be at an enormous advantage if you have thought about and integrated the material before we meet.

Thus, I regret that, if you do not complete the assignment before we begin class on February 7, you will be penalized a half grade for the course (and will still be required to complete the assignment).

To be completed during the two classes: class participation.

Students will be evaluated by the quality of their engagement and all students (whether or not they are hand-raisers) will be given the chance to engage. This will constitute 50% of your overall grade.

To be completed after class (by or before March 2)

A 700 word (about 2-3 pages) thought paper on a humanitarian policy of your choice, with your perspectives drawn from what you've learned in class. This will constitute 25% of your overall grade.

Late submissions: For each week (or portion thereof) that you are delayed in completing this assignment, you will be penalized one half grade on your paper.

Organization of the course

I will organize our two day class around eight broad topic areas (though we might devote more time to some than to others), and we will spend 1-2 hours or so, on average, on each topic. As mentioned, I'm planning to have guest presenters for many of those topic areas, and class conversation will be a very important component of our two days.

In general, each section will start with a short presentation of the material, followed by discussion. Over the course of the two days, we will structure discussions in various ways to keep it interesting and keep everyone engaged in the material. In some cases, we will have traditional class discussion. In other cases, we will break up into small group conversations, and have groups present their observations/conclusions at the end of the hour long session.

Topic areas for the course and assigned readings

Note: review this very carefully.

Again, please read this section before you begin (and while you are completing) the reading assignments

Note that if I ask you to read a webpage, I do not expect you to read the links that are within that webpage, unless I indicate explicitly that you are to do so.

Also note that in the readings described below, I have not used a particular citation convention, but rather have presented them in a way designed to make the most easily accessible to you.

The subject areas:

1. A History and Overview of Humanitarianism

We will consider the origins of both the concept of humanitarianism and the field of practice. What are the critical components of humanitarianism, and how do we understand the evolution of concepts like neutrality, impartiality, humanity, and independence? What is the larger political context in which humanitarian activities take place? We will consider and assess the breadth of the humanitarianism, as officials and representatives of NGOs have sought to go beyond the saving of lives, and have attempted to promote reconciliation and recovery in countries around the world.

Reading

Text:

Weiss and Barnett, “Humanitarianism: A Brief History of the Present,” Chapter 1, pp.1-48, in Humanitarianism in Question. 2008. Cornell University Press. The chapter should be available on the Canvas site.

Note that this collection was published in 2008, and much has occurred over the past decade. But it provides a good overview of humanitarianism.

2. The State of the Humanitarian World, and Where Does Humanitarianism Fit in Relations between States?

We’ll examine and discuss worldwide humanitarian trends, and then consider the fact that efforts to address crises take place within a larger international political context, broadly defined. How do policy-makers and practitioners make sense of that larger context, and how does it impact the actions they take or fail to take?

Readings

UNHCR Document: UNHCR, Global Trends (2018), pp. 1-12, 24-33, and 61, 64-75 (skim these final 11 pages). At <https://www.unhcr.org/5d08d7ee7.pdf>

This is the UNCHR annual report on the state of the world. Chapter 1 is an introduction. Read pages 2-3 very closely, as they contain important basic information on vulnerable populations, including refugees—that is, those fleeing persecution, human rights violations, and conflict—as well as internally displaced persons, who have characteristics like refugees, but are within the borders of their countries of origin. (We will discuss definitions in class.)

Chapter 3 (beginning p. 27) addresses “solutions.” But prior to that discussion (beginning on p. 24), you will read about Venezuelans forced to flee their country of origin. I’ve asked you to read about that population because it is a particular compelling case of forced migration.

Chapters 8 and 9—pp. 61, and 64-75, contain statistical and definitional information that you should review (you only need to skim pp. 64-75).

Donor and Recipient Statistics:

Development Initiatives, Global Humanitarian Assistance Report 2019. Executive Summary (including the “Humanitarian Assistance in Numbers” page), pp. 9-13. Also read Ch. 4, pp. 61-72, to obtain an idea of how donor dollars flow. You can download the entire report, at <https://devinit.org/publications/global-humanitarian-assistance-report-2019/#downloads>

This reading is designed to give you a sense of the sources and directions of international humanitarian funding. Look, in particular, 1) at the percentage of funds that come, at the very outset, from national governments; 2) at the overall flows (or pathways) of monies to intended recipients; 3) at the relatively modest amount of monies (albeit monies that have grown over time) that go to UN pooled funds—funds that give the UN at the central and local level greater flexibility to use resources where they are most needed; and 4) at the relative percentages of monies that flow to local NGOS.

You might not be able to access the article on the Washington Post website, but it will be on Canvas, and it is also accessible at UMN libraries.

-- Walt, “Could We Have Stopped this Tragedy? A realist grapples with his doubts on intervention in Syria.” Foreign Policy, September 21, 2015. At <http://foreignpolicy.com/2015/09/21/could-we-have-stopped-this-tragedy-syria-intervention-realist/>

You might not be able to access the article on the Foreign Policy website, but it will be on Canvas, and it is also accessible at UMN libraries.

Why should states engage in humanitarianism – that is, both the effort to provide assistance to vulnerable populations and (depending on how we define the term) the effort to prevent or bring an end to conflicts that impact civilians? We won’t have the time in this short course to explore various theories of international relations and foreign policy (as well as ethics) and how each might address that question. But we do need to briefly consider this question of why states should (or should not) engage. These short readings offer a variety of perspectives.

3. The United Nations, International Institutions, and Human Rights and Humanitarian Law Designed to Address Global Crises and to Protect Human Rights in Situations of Conflict: Do they Matter?

We'll examine the United Nations and other international organizations as well as international legal instruments that establish an institutional and legal context through which governments and international organizations involve themselves in humanitarian issues and through which the human rights of individuals affected by conflict are defined and might be protected. What does the UN Charter suggest about the role of governments in responding to complex crises, what norms and institutions have been developed to provide such capacity, and what are the challenges to their effectiveness? We will introduce the legal regimes surrounding various humanitarian issues and designed to safeguard rights, such as the Geneva Conventions, the Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees, and other international instruments. And we will consider – very briefly – the “Responsibility to Protect” doctrine.

Readings

Basic text:

Weiss et al. The United Nations and Changing World Politics, Introduction, pp. 1-21; Chapter 1 (“The Theory and Practice of UN Collective Security”) pp. 25-42.

The chapters in the Weiss book provide basic information about the United Nations. It was published in 2017, so the section on collective security omits discussion of some recent and crucial events—nonetheless, the Weiss readings are important.

International Legal Documents Related to Humanitarianism and Human Rights:

The readings below are, or describe, international legal documents that relate to laws or norms that impact international humanitarian response as well as human rights. I want you to be familiar with these documents and their texts. I understand that you will not become an expert on each simply with a read-through.

1. UN Charter. You may read most of the Charter quickly. But focus, in particular, on introductory note, Preamble, Chapter I, Article 1 and 2; Chapter IV, Articles 11, 12, 17, 19; Chapter V, Articles 23, 24, 25, 27; Chapter VI; Chapter VII; Chapter VIII; Chapter IX, Chapter X, Chapter XV, and Chapter XVI, Article 103. At <http://www.un.org/en/documents/charter/index.shtml>

The UN Charter is considered an authoritative expression of international law; all UN members are, in theory, bound by its provisions. See, in particular, the responsibilities and authorities associated with the Security Council, in general, and the permanent members of that body.

“The Geneva Conventions of 1949 and their Additional Protocols,” at ICRC Website, at <http://www.icrc.org/eng/war-and-law/treaties-customary-law/geneva-conventions/overview-geneva-conventions.htm>

Read this webpage, which summarizes the Conventions. Please also read the links at the bottom of the page, to short summaries of Protocol I, Protocol II, and Protocol III. The summaries will not make you an expert on the Protocols, but I want you to see the effort to strengthen the effect of the Conventions. Note that I am not asking you to read the text of the Conventions or the Protocols.

Founded in 1863, the International Committee of the Red Cross “is an impartial, neutral and independent organization whose exclusively humanitarian mission is to protect the lives and dignity of victims of armed conflict and other situations of violence and to provide them with assistance.” (From the ICRC website.)

2. Description of ICRC Convention IV. At <http://www.icrc.org/applic/ihl/ihl.nsf/INTRO/380> This is another description of Convention IV – a bit longer than the prior one. On that page, please also read all of Article 3 of Convention IV (conflicts not of an international character – also known as “common article 3,” as it is included in all four Geneva conventions of 1949), for which there is link on the web page.

3. Convention and Protocol Relating to the Status of Refugees. Read the Convention and Protocol. Convention <https://www.ohchr.org/EN/ProfessionalInterest/Pages/StatusOfRefugees.aspx> Protocol: <https://www.ohchr.org/EN/ProfessionalInterest/Pages/ProtocolStatusOfRefugees.aspx>

This international convention was adopted largely in response to the displacement in Europe following World War II – and its initial focus was on refugees who had fled countries in Europe. The Convention’s Protocol, which was adopted much later, applied the Convention’s provisions to the rest of the world. As a practitioner, I found that Articles 1 and 33 were probably the most important ones in my work.

5. Guiding Principles on Internal Displacement, at <http://www.ohchr.org/EN/Issues/IDPersons/Pages/Standards.aspx>

Read the introductory material on the webpage and access and read the Guiding Principles document.

6. Universal Declaration of Human Rights, at <http://www.un.org/en/universal-declaration-human-rights/>

Read the introductory material on the webpage and the Declaration.

The Universal Declaration is not a treaty – rather, it was a resolution, adopted by the General Assembly in 1948. It foreshadowed two international human rights treaties, the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights.

Documents relating to the Responsibility to Protect

While we won’t have the time to explore this concept in depth, I want you to obtain a sense of the issues surrounding the R2P doctrine, and have provided a few readings. We will also discuss in class.

-- Secretary General’s presentation to the United Nations General Assembly, 20 September 1999.

This excerpt is from an Outcome Document of governments meeting in New York at the United Nations in 2005. It represents, to some extent, early acceptance in principle of the doctrine of the Responsibility to Protect.

4. The International Humanitarian Players, and Key International Humanitarian Issues

We'll first consider the major public international institutions that have emerged to address international humanitarian issues, including the Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA) and UN funds and programs that are involved in humanitarian issues (UNHCR, UNICEF, the World Food Program, etc.). Aspiring policy-makers and practitioners should know how these institutions seek to translate the concepts of humanitarianism into programs involving billions of dollars from governments around the world.

We'll also use this section to consider some of the key policy issues with which these institutions, and governments of the world, are now dealing. In particular, we'll consider global initiatives designed to promote international "compacts" on refugees and on migration, focusing on longer term solutions what have in many cases been defined as intractable conflicts.

Readings

For the webpage readings, in particular, follow the directions carefully, so you only read the right pages. If I have asked you to read a link/webpage and that link/webpage has embedded links within it, you do not need to read those embedded "sublinks" unless I specifically ask you to do so.

On the Major International Institutions Dealing with Humanitarian Response

A. UNOCHA and Humanitarian Coordination

The Office of Coordination for Humanitarian Affairs is part of the UN Secretariat – it is therefore run by an Undersecretary General, who also holds the title of UN Emergency Relief Coordinator. OCHA is charged with coordination of the many and varied agencies that are involved in humanitarian response. These readings are designed to give you a sense of the operations and structure of OCHA, as well as some key issues.

The Cluster Approach

This is an approach to humanitarian coordination that grew out of the international humanitarian reform efforts—and, in particular, a 2005 reform project in which the UN was engaged. The cluster approach primarily addresses coordination challenges for crises in non-refugee settings – involving internally displaced persons and other impacted citizens who have not left their countries of origin. UNHCR continues to have lead responsibilities outside the Cluster System for refugee emergencies, though, for reasons we can discuss in class, the distinction often breaks down in practice.

Interagency Standing Committee

IASC, or the Interagency Standing Committee, is a coordinating body under OCHA that is composed of OCHA, UN agencies and non-governmental representatives. It plays a role in overall coordination in the international humanitarian system.

Please read the link, About the IASC

B. Other International Humanitarian Institutions outside of OCHA

While OCHA has responsibilities for organization/coordination of large-scale humanitarian response, other multilateral institutions—in large measure “UN funds and programs” which are not within the UN Secretariat—receive far greater resources when it comes to actual assistance programming. These funds and programs receive the overwhelming portion of their support from voluntary contributions from governments. I may discuss several of these organizations in class, and have not assigned a large amount of readings relating to them. But I've assigned very brief descriptions for the two largest funds and programs, UNHCR and WFP, which together account for the bulk of the more than $15 billion of humanitarian aid provided annually by all multilateral institutions as of 2017. (As you may recall from earlier in this syllabus, there is a useful graphic on aid flows in the "Channels of Delivery" page, 62, of the Global Humanitarian Assistance Report.)

- The Global Compact on Refugees (GCR). (Note: the Comprehensive Refugee Response Framework, or CRRF, is part of the GCR, and is referenced in the GCR. I have not assigned the CRRF, but you may want to read it. You can find it through the reference provided in the GCR document.)

- Aleinikoff and Zamore, The Arc of Protection: Reforming the International Refugee Regime. 2019. Stanford University Press. (Whole book.)

The first document, the Global Compact on Refugees (GCR), was adopted by nearly all governments of the world late in 2017, and it is a document designed to encourage a range of measures to support refugee well-being and self-reliance, involving action by governments in countries of origin, refugee hosting counties, and resettlement countries.

The second document is on refugee participation in the GCR. I have included it because of the importance of the issue of refugee participation in decisions that impact refugee lives. Traditionally, such participation has been highly limited at best and non-existent at worst.

The third document, on the "compact model," is not about the Global Compact, but rather on agreements (compacts) with host governments to provide them with support in return for their willingness to provide refugees with access to labor markets.

The final document, the major reading for our course, is a book called The Arc of Protection. It provides a good overview of legal issues involving refugees and other forced migrants, questions whether efforts to promote refugee well-being and self-reliance have gone far enough, and makes recommendations that the authors argue would address refugee well-being more systemically and systematically.

5. Peacekeeping

In the decade of the 1990s, in particular, United Nations peacekeepers became the tool of choice in many situations involving international efforts to address complex humanitarian crises. But United Nations peacekeeping was not originally developed with such ambitious objectives. We will consider the theory behind traditional peacekeeping, and how that has changed in recent decades, and the challenges that this poses.

6. Women, Peace and Security

This is a critical area for humanitarians, and one that is regularly neglected in humanitarian settings. Practitioners and scholars involved in humanitarian issues have considered women, peace and security from several perspectives: t h e y ’ v e f o c u s e d o n the imperative of preventing and punishing violations of the human rights of women in situations of persecution and conflict and the differential needs of women in humanitarian settings. In addition, they’ve emphasized the importance of reconstruction efforts that recognize the role of women as agents of economic, social and political development; and on the value of promoting greater inclusion of women in positions of leadership in peacebuilding programs.

Readings:

Finally, I include a recent report on women and girls in South Sudan, as it provides you an indication of the kinds of overwhelming and complex challenges confronted by victims of sexual exploitation and abuse.

7. NGOs in Humanitarian Response

Whether it is the Minneapolis-based “Alight” (formerly the American Refugee Committee), the International Rescue Committee, Medecins Sans Frontieres, Save the Children, or dozens if not many hundreds of others, non-governmental organizations are playing a key role in international humanitarian response. How well organized and effective is the NGO community in humanitarian response? To what extent are NGOs in the developing world engaged? What program and normative issues, such as a rights-based approach to humanitarian assistance, are they bringing forward? And what issues of accountability arise in this context, for the NGOs themselves, as well as for policy-makers who must make decisions about providing support to these organizations?

Readings

8. U.S. Government in Humanitarian Response, including Overseas Assistance, Refugee Admissions and Asylum – Organization and Activities

We will examine both overseas humanitarian assistance provided by the United States, as well as issues involving the U.S. refugee admissions program, asylum, and immigration.

A. Overseas Humanitarian Assistance

There are many offices, agencies, and departments involved in the delivery of U.S. humanitarian assistance—and that number increases if we use an expanded definition of humanitarian assistance that includes peace-building. The bulk of U.S. civilian humanitarian assistance comes from two agencies: the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) and the State Department.

In recent years, that number has hovered around $9 billion, from three accounts (numbers below are estimates, as I do not have precise FY 2018 numbers as of this writing):

1) The International Disaster Assistance Account – overall, some four billion dollars per year in recent years, and implemented by USAID’s Office of Overseas Disaster Assistance (OFDA), in USAID’s Bureau of Democracy, Conflict and Humanitarian Assistance;

2) Title II Food Aid (most of which is used for emergency assistance)—nearly two billion dollars per year, also implemented by USAID’s Bureau of Democracy, Conflict and Humanitarian Assistance; and

3) Migration and Refugee Assistance—over $3 billion per year, and implemented by the State Department’s Bureau of Population, Refugees and Migration.

(Again, all numbers above are ballpark estimates.)

USAID’s Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance (OFDA, number 1, above) works with non-governmental organizations in large measure, but also has agreements for support of projects undertaken by international organizations. It also sends Disaster Assistance Response Teams (DARTs) around the world to the sites of disasters make assessments and recommendations for response.

USAID’s emergency food aid (number 2, above) is largely delivered to the World Food Program.

State/PRM (number 3, above) channels the bulk of its assistance to international organizations, including UNHCR and ICRC and—until funding was eliminated by the Trump Administration last year—the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA). To a greater extent than OFDA, PRM provides what might be described as program rather than “project” support to recipients of its assistance. PRM also supports NGOs, but to a much smaller degree than does OFDA (in terms of percentage of each agency’s total disbursements).

And PRM has major responsibilities with respect to the U.S. refugee admissions program.

Finally, and as mentioned above, there are other U.S. government offices involved (and which provide aid beyond the estimated $9 billion), especially if you use a broad definition of humanitarian assistance to include peacebuilding. This includes USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives, the State Department Bureau of Conflict and Stabilization Operations, as well as offices that support UN peacekeeping, in the State Department's Bureau of International Organization Affairs, among others.

The Trump Administration sought to dramatically reduce funding for these accounts, but that effort has been resisted by the Congress.

Also, the Trump Administration has considered reorganization of humanitarian offices, including how better to coordinate (or consolidate) humanitarian efforts at the Department of State and USAID. I will discuss this issue in class.

B. U.S. Domestic Policy Developments and Debate Around Immigration, Refugee Admissions, and Asylum

It is difficult to neatly separate domestic and foreign policy on migration and refugee protection issues, so some of what appears below can be characterized as both domestic policy and international humanitarian policy. For clarity, I have divided the descriptions below largely into two categories: the U.S. refugee admissions program and issues relating to asylum.

The U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP)

Under the 1980 Refugee Act, the President each year determines a U.S. refugee admissions ceiling—that is, the maximum number of refugees the United States will agree to bring to the United States for the purposes of resettlement. The vast majority of such persons are among the more than 25 million refugees receiving some form of temporary protection in countries to which they have fled. The U.S. Refugee Admissions program is a discretionary program that is distinct from the U.S. asylum process, in which people already within the United States or seeking entry at U.S. borders request protection.)

In the final year of the Obama administration, the U.S. Refugee Admissions ceiling was set at 110,000 for fiscal year 2017 (October 1, 2016 to September 30, 2017), but it was effectively reduced to just over 50,000 through executive action by President Trump, who also ordered a temporary suspension in the refugee admissions program after he came to office, a suspension that was technically lifted in late October 2017—but was followed by a special three month review that impacted refugees from 11 countries deemed to be high risk. That review was completed in January 2018, and the program that emerged has new security procedures in place..

For fiscal year 2018 (October 1, 2017 to September 30, 2018), the President authorized a U.S. refugee ceiling of 45,000. And for fiscal year 2019, the President authorized a U.S. refugee ceiling of 30,000. For fiscal year 2020, the number was 18,000. The president also issued an Executive Order <https://www.whitehouse.gov/presidential-actions/executive-order-enhancing-state-local-involvement-refugee-resettlement/>)—now being challenged in court—that would only permit resettlement of refugees under the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program in “those jurisdictions in which both the State and local governments have consented to receive refugees” under the Program. I have not assigned the executive order, but I have included the link directly above.

The United States and Hungary were the only two governments that voted against adoption of the Global Compact on Refugees (GCR) in December 2018. This November 2018 explanation of vote, which took place in the UN’s Third Committee during consideration of the GCR (in the context of an “omnibus” UNHCR resolution), provides an official rationale for U.S. opposition to the GCR. Although it is not detailed, it gives you a sense of the perspectives of the Trump administration, though the language was undoubtedly “softened” by U.S. humanitarian officials who had a more sympathetic view of the Compact than senior officials in the White House who were driving the policy. That is probably reflected in the complimentary language in the first part of the statement.

Asylum in the United States

Given the breadth of materials we will be considering, it is not possible to provide you with readings that capture all ongoing and new developments on asylum issues in recent years in the United States. During class, I will briefly describe some of the most significant administrative and legal developments surrounding the asylum debate, which include, inter alia, U.S. government efforts and/or measures—

1) to criminally prosecute those who have sought to cross into the United States between ports of entry (whether or not they have valid claims for asylum),

2) to “meter” asylum requests, in which U.S. officials at ports of entry at the southern border with Mexico have told asylum seekers that there is insufficient processing capacity and that they must return at another time;

3) to require asylum seekers to “remain in Mexico” during the pendency of their claims (the so-called “Migrant Protection Protocols”);

4) to prohibit applications for asylum from asylum seekers who transited a third country en route to the southern border of the United States and did not apply for asylum in that third country; and

5) to negotiate “Asylum Cooperative Agreements” with several countries in Central America providing that individuals seeking asylum in the United States could be sent to one of those Central American countries to have their claims considered and—and if accepted—to obtain asylum in one of those countries. (The asylum seeker would not be sent by the United States to their country of origin. Thus, an asylum seeker from, say, Honduras, would not be returned directly to Honduras, but rather sent to another Central American country, such as El Salvador.)

The Trump administration has argued that these measures are necessary to ensure against abuse of the U.S. asylum system, especially given the very large backlog of asylum applicants in the system. Advocates and others contend that these and other measures, collectively, amount to fundamental violations of the Refugee Convention and Protocol, and, effectively, “the end of asylum.”

<https://www.pbs.org/wgbh/frontline/article/a-guide-to-some-major-trump-administration-immigration-policies/>

A short, albeit partial, overview that may be useful to you.

Note that the very controversial Trump Administration travel ban, first issued by executive order in January 2017, is mentioned in this article. As alluded to in the Torbati piece, above, the executive order did impact the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program significantly—due to the suspension it imposed on the program and due to the more arduous security screening that has resulted. But the executive order and the ban were not primarily aimed at the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program, and I thus have not included additional readings on the ban. However, I would be prepared to discuss the ban in class.

White House, “Remarks by President Trump on illegal Immigration Crisis and Border Security,” November 1, 2018, at <https://www.whitehouse.gov/briefings-statements/remarks-president-trump-illegal-immigration-crisis-border-security/>

I’ve included this press conference from late 2018 because it provides insight into the president’s perspectives on migration, immigration, and asylum, as well as on how he has sought to portray these issues to the media and to the public.

Schwartz, “The Migrant Caravan, a policy and public affairs challenge,” remarks at the Council on Foreign Relations, Washington, DC, December 11, 2018, at <https://static1.squarespace.com/static/506c8ea1e4b01d9450dd53f5/t/5c114893758d4673e2e136d7/1544636564067/FINAL+Speech+CFR+12-11.pdf>

My effort to put these issues into a larger context—somewhat out of date, but I have included it nonetheless.

Further information about the course.

Attendance

As we only meet on two days, attendance is critical. If you have special issues concerning attendance that emerge before or during class, let me know and we can discuss. Note that any requirements we have in our class are subject to University policy, as described in <https://policy.umn.edu/education/makeupwork>

Special note on stressful issues and on mental health and stress management:

Because humanitarian crises often involve human rights abuses and great suffering, some of the topics, readings, and discussion may involve issues that impact students personally and profoundly. I will work hard to address challenging issues with sensitivity, but you should feel free to speak with me if we are dealing with material you find personally difficult. We will of course keep all such discussion private.

More generally, you may experience a range of issues that can cause barriers to learning, such as strained relationships, increased anxiety, alcohol/drug problems, feeling down, difficulty concentrating, and/or lack of motivation. These mental health concerns or stressful events may lead to diminished academic performance or reduce your ability to participate in daily activities. University of Minnesota services are available to assist you with addressing these and other concerns you may be experiencing. You can learn more about the broad range of confidential mental health services available on campus via <https://disability.umn.edu/>.

If you are enrolled with Disability Services and would like to make an accommodation request, I encourage you to share this with me as soon as possible so that we can be of maximum support to you. See more on their services at the end of the syllabus.

Remember also that there are advisors in the Humphrey Student Services office who are trained and experienced counselors. They are available at very short notice to address any concerns you have and provide further resources within the University. You can visit Humphrey Student Services in HHH 280, or on 612-624-8162.

Other University Policies

I have included below a description of additional, University-wide policies on a range of issues, which you may also wish to review. They provide information on general student conduct, use of personal electronic devices in the classroom, scholastic dishonesty, make-up work, grading, sexual harassment, equity and diversity, disability accommodations, and academic freedom and responsibility.

Student Conduct Code

The University seeks an environment that promotes academic achievement and integrity, that is protective of free inquiry, and that serves the educational mission of the University. Similarly, the University seeks a community that is free from violence, threats, and intimidation; that is respectful of the rights, opportunities, and welfare of students, faculty, staff, and guests of the University; and that does not threaten the physical or mental health or safety of members of the University community.

As a student at the University you are expected adhere to Board of Regents Policy: Student Conduct Code. To review the Student Conduct Code, please see: <https://policy.umn.edu/node/7178>

Note that the conduct code specifically addresses disruptive classroom conduct, which means "engaging in behavior that substantially or repeatedly interrupts either the instructor's ability to teach or student learning. The classroom extends to any setting where a student is engaged in work toward academic credit or satisfaction of program-based requirements or related activities."

Use of Personal Electronic Devices in the Classroom

Using personal electronic devices in the classroom setting can hinder instruction and learning, not only for the student using the device but also for other students in the class. To this end, the University establishes the right of each faculty member to determine if and how personal electronic devices are allowed to be used in the classroom. For complete information, please reference: <http://policy.umn.edu/Policies/Education/Education/STUDENTRESP.html>.

Scholastic Dishonesty

You are expected to do your own academic work and cite sources as necessary. Failing to do so is scholastic dishonesty. Scholastic dishonesty means plagiarizing; cheating on assignments or examinations; engaging in unauthorized collaboration on academic work; taking, acquiring, or using test materials without faculty permission; submitting false or incomplete records of academic achievement; acting alone or in cooperation with another to falsify records or to obtain dishonestly grades, honors, awards, or professional endorsement; altering, forging, or misusing a University academic record; or fabricating or falsifying data, research procedures, or data analysis. (Student Conduct Code:

http://regents.umn.edu/sites/default/files/policies/Student\_Conduct\_Code.pdf) If it is determined that a student has cheated, he or she may be given an "F" or an "N" for the course, and may face additional sanctions from the University. For additional information, please see: <http://policy.umn.edu/Policies/Education/Education/INSTRUCTORRESP.html>.

The Office for Student Conduct and Academic Integrity has an information page related to scholastic dishonesty: <http://www1.umn.edu/oscai/integrity/student/index.html>. If you have additional questions, please clarify with your instructor for the course. Your instructor can respond to your specific questions regarding what would constitute scholastic dishonesty in the context of a particular class – e.g., whether collaboration on assignments is permitted, requirements and methods for citing sources, if electronic aids are permitted or prohibited during an exam.

Makeup Work for Legitimate Absences

Students will not be penalized for absence during the semester due to unavoidable or legitimate circumstances. Such circumstances include verified illness, participation in intercollegiate athletic events, subpoenas, jury duty, military service, bereavement, and religious observances. Such circumstances do not include voting in local, state, or national elections. For complete information, please see: <https://policy.umn.edu/education/makeupwork>

Appropriate Student Use of Class Notes and Course Materials

Taking notes is a means of recording information but more importantly of personally absorbing and integrating the educational experience. However, broadly disseminating class notes beyond the classroom community or accepting compensation for taking and distributing classroom notes undermines instructor interests in their intellectual work product while not substantially furthering instructor and student interests in effective learning. Such actions violate shared norms and standards of the academic community. For additional information, please see: <https://policy.umn.edu/education/studentresp>

Grading and Transcripts

The University utilizes plus and minus grading on a 4.000 cumulative grade point scale in accordance with the following:

- A 4.000 - Represents achievement that is outstanding relative to the level necessary to meet course requirements
- A- 3.667

B+	3.333
B	3.000 - Represents achievement that is significantly above the level necessary to meet course requirements
B-	2.667
C+	2.333
C	2.000 - Represents achievement that meets the course requirements in every respect
C-	1.667
D+	1.333
D	1.000 - Represents achievement that is worthy of credit even though it fails to meet fully the course requirements
S	Represents achievement that is satisfactory, which is equivalent to a C- or better.

For additional information, please refer to:

<https://policy.umn.edu/education/gradingtranscripts>

Sexual Harassment

"Sexual harassment" means unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and/or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or academic performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working or academic environment in any University activity or program. Such behavior is not acceptable in the University setting. For additional information, please consult the UMN policy document, Sexual Harassment, Sexual Assault, Stalking and Relationship Violence:

<https://policy.umn.edu/hr/sexharassassault>

Equity, Diversity, Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action

The University provides equal access to and opportunity in its programs and facilities, without regard to race, color, creed, religion, national origin, gender, age, marital status, disability, public assistance status, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression. For more information, please consult Board of Regents Policy:

https://regents.umn.edu/sites/regents.umn.edu/files/2019-09/policy\_equality\_diversity\_equal\_opportunity\_and\_affirmative\_action.pdf

Disability Accommodations

The University of Minnesota is committed to providing equitable access to learning opportunities for all students. Disability Services (DS) is the campus office that collaborates with students who have disabilities to provide and/or arrange reasonable accommodations.

If you have, or think you may have, a disability (e.g., mental health, attentional, learning, chronic health, sensory, or physical), please contact DS at 612-626-1333 to arrange a confidential discussion regarding equitable access and reasonable accommodations.

If you are registered with DS and have a current letter requesting reasonable accommodations, please contact your instructor as early in the semester as possible to discuss how the accommodations will be applied in the course.

For more information, please see the DS website, <https://diversity.umn.edu/disability/>

Academic Freedom and Responsibility

Academic freedom is a cornerstone of the University. Within the scope and content of the course as defined by the instructor, it includes the freedom to discuss relevant matters in the classroom and conduct relevant research. Along with this freedom comes responsibility. Students are encouraged to develop the capacity for critical judgment and to engage in a sustained and independent search for truth. Students are free to take reasoned exception to the views offered in any course of study and to reserve judgment about matters of opinion, but they are responsible for learning the content of any course of study for which they are enrolled.* When conducting research, pertinent institutional approvals must be obtained and the research must be consistent with University policies.

Reports of concerns about academic freedom are taken seriously, and there are individuals and offices available for help. Contact the instructor, the Department Chair, your adviser, the associate dean of the college, or the Vice Provost for Faculty and Academic Affairs in the Office of the Provost.
